INTRODUCTION

Millions of men and women suffer from inflammatory overreactions leading to facial skin redness. This impacts greatly on ones personal appearance and personal self esteem. This redness can be hereditary or caused and exacerbated by environmental conditions, skin care products, foods, allergies etc. It is very important to understand that people have different reactions to the same ingredient or product or external elements. What's perfectly acceptable to some can create problems with others.

THE CAUSE

The natural response of our skins immune system in dealing with this unfortunate experience is linked to increased levels of facial skin molecules recently been proven to create the symptoms of rosacea such as ...

- Dilation of capillaries making them more obvious
- Inflammation and erythema
- Couperose and a red flaky appears
- Post inflammatory pigmentations
- A reduction in skin firmness and elasticity
- Skin that is more vulnerable to sun damage
- Skin that blushes easily and becomes extremely sensitive
- Redness, permanent or temporary, linked to rosacea and telangiectasia
